Deer feeding could become road safety problem

By Laura Halleman

Staff writer

Leetsdale officials considered their options last week regarding what some residents consider a deer dilemma in their community.

Mayor Pete Poninsky, as well as several members of council, said they have received complaints involving residents who have been feeding the deer.

"We have several people right now on Beaver Street who are feeding them every day," said Poninsky.

Several residents are concerned that feeding the deer is unsafe and could lead to more vehicular accidents in the area.

Also, by luring the deer into neighborhoods with food in turn attracts them to gardens and spring landscaping.

"Every day, I am almost in an accident due to the deer and the situation seems to get worse every year," said Debbie Henle, a Leetsdale resident.

Henle said the deer also have chewed up her landscaping on the hillside behind their home.

Council member Lynn Kohlmeier said she understood residents enjoy the deer but said it is not only dangerous for the community, but for the deer as well.

"There is a place to enjoy them and it is not on Beaver Street."

Council member Roger Nanni asked borough solicitor Richard Start if it was possible to prohibit the feeding of deer in the borough through an ordinance.

Start said he wasn't sure if an ordinance would be the correct way to go, but advised council to contact the Pennsylvania State Borough's Association to see how other communities have dealt with the issue.

ON THE MARCH

Committee prepares for tradition of Memorial Day Parade

By Sarah Mills

Herald contributor

Don't let the parade pass you by.

The Sewickley Memorial Day committee needs about $8,500 to fund this year's parade.

The 114-year old tradition, to be held Monday, May 30, at 10 a.m., is funded almost exclusively by private donations.

"There's a misconception that the Sewickley borough pays for the parade. They don't. There's a misconception that the bands and marching units are free, and they're not," said Paul Collier of the Memorial Day Parade 12-member committee.

The total cost of the parade usually tops $13,500 per year. Thus far, donations have only reached $5,000.

Although some acts are free, the majority can run from $100 to $900 each, with the cost of food afterwards requiring a budget of about $1,000.

The parade, which traverses Beaver, Graham, Thorn, and Grant streets, is a much loved tradition watched by thousands of people. It includes local veterans, bands, acts, community groups and marching units.

"People bring their lawn chairs out, serve coffee to their friends and make a little party out of watching the parade go by," said John Wise, mayor of Sewickley and chair of the committee.

The Sewickley Memorial Day celebration is conducted in three parts: the parade, the ceremony at Wolcott Park, and the ceremony in Sewickley Cemetery.

This year's keynote speaker will be Jim Theys, a celebrated WWII veteran who flew 33 bombing missions over Germany and earned the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Theys, who will serve as Grand Marshal, also will give the keynote address at Wolcott Park and at the cemetery.

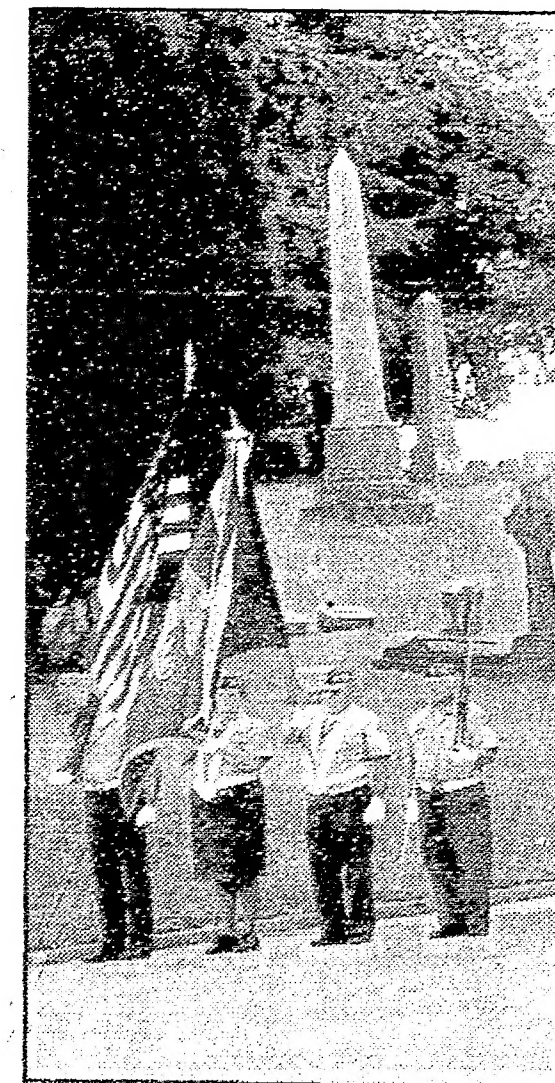

The ceremony at the Sewickley Cemetery includes placing wreaths on the graves of the veterans and a Marine Corps Colorguard offering a 21-gun salute before the haunting sounds of Taps echoes on the hillside.

Although the cost of the parade is high, Wise is anxious that the Sewickley tradition continue.

"We've always found ways to fund the parade. What we really want people to know is that this is a community-funded event. We would hope that people come out and watch the parade, but also financially support the nice parade that we have," he said.

So far, Quaker Valley High School Marching Band and the Northgate Band have been booked for the parade.

Three Five and Drum Corps units will march and play and veterans from WWII, Korea, Vietnam and Desert Storm will take part.

Local dignitaries, Girl and Boy Scout troops, police and fire department officials, all come to Sewickley Village for the morning.

All donations are welcome. Contributions can be sent to Anthony M. Cicco, Memorial Day Committee, 601 Thorn Street, Sewickley PA 15143.

RELAY FOR LIFE

Despite rain, walkers log miles for cancer cure

By Laura Halleman

Staff writer

Walkers braved the torrential downpours and eventual sunshine on Saturday and Sunday during the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life fund-raiser held at Quaker Valley High School.

The event, held on the high school's track, required teams of 10 to 15 walkers to have at least one member of their team walking the track at all times, a symbol of the fact that cancer never sleeps.

With nearly 400 team members participating in the event and a fund-raising goal of $30,000, organizers of the walk said they were well on their way to surpassing that.

Walkers included cancer survivors, those who have lost loved ones to the disease and many who came out to support a worthy cause.

These are just a few of their stories. When Sally Maloney was diagnosed in February with breast cancer, her initial reaction was shock. Maloney, 51, had faithfully gotten yearly mammograms since turning 40. In 2004, however, she unintentionally skipped her annual mammogram.

In February, after having a mammogram test done, Maloney was initially diagnosed with stage 3 breast cancer, only to find out within a few weeks time that she was dealing with stage 4. Her doctor scheduled her for an oncology appointment right away and told her that he never makes a diagnosis without a biopsy, but he was 99 percent sure from initial tests that it was cancer.

"I remember the doctor telling me 'There is nothing more important for you to do today than go to this appointment.' There was a real sense of urgency in his voice."

Maloney, who lives in Sewickley with her husband, Jonathan, and stepson, Teddy, and who also has a 23-year-old son attending Pitt, said her initial reaction was shock.

"The first thing I thought of was my family and I thought I'm not done with those kids yet and I need to hang around for them," she said.

She also remembered a friend who had passed away from breast cancer. Overcoming her initial shock, Maloney came home and called her family and friends. From that point on, she was encircled with love and support that she attributes for her strength through the disease.

"When I was diagnosed with stage 4 breast cancer I was thinking 'How will I ever get through this?' and literally the day I told my family and friends they just surrounded us. They just immediately took over and helped," said Maloney.

Her friends and family put together a meal program and arranged for help cleaning her house. On Mother's Day, more than 50 people participated in Race for the Cure on her behalf, and she had a team of walkers at the Relay for Life at QVHS.

Maloney was unable to participate in the walks due to a fractured vertebra in her back where the cancer had spread. She had attributed the pain she had felt in her back prior to her diagnosis as a possible pulled muscle.

Although she admits to having her moments, Maloney's positive attitude is inspirational.

She credits her husband for her strength, as well. A sixth grade volunteer basketball coach at Quaker Valley for 10 years, Maloney said her husband has a coach's mentality. She recalled one particularly bad day she was experiencing.

"He just said to me, we're going to get through this. There are no quitters in this house. We will get through this. And that really helped me."

The couples' employers also have been extremely supportive during this time and she is thankful to have healthcare coverage.

"Many people who have cancer don't have wonderful healthcare like I do. I consider myself one of the lucky ones," she said.

"Even though it's horrible and tragic, I'm so blessed with friends and family. I'm blessed to live in such a wonderful area."

Doctors have not given Maloney a prognosis yet.

"I've been told that they cannot cure the cancer, only contain it," she said.

Maloney has two messages she'd like for others to hear: Get regular mammograms and believe in the power of prayer.

"I literally feel that I've become stronger through other people's prayers."

Although she was unable to take part in the Relay for Life, Maloney did take part in the Survivor's Walk, the highlight of Saturday's events. As she and other cancer survivors took to the track, the skies grew cloudy and it looked as though rain was imminent.

But as the survivors began to walk the lap to the cheers of the crowd, the clouds parted and a rainbow graced the sky above until the cancer survivors completed their lap.

LAUREN BICHSEL, 5, helps to light the way through the rain on Saturday night.

In memory of his sister, Ginger Woods, who passed away a little over two years ago of cancer at age 49, Mark Kujawski and Josie White volunteered on the committee for the Relay for Life.

Theirs and other volunteers' tireless efforts to keep the nearly 200 luminary bags labeled with the names of those who had succumbed to cancer and cancer survivors lighted in the rain on Saturday night were nothing short of remarkable.

"We're just trying to make a difference," said Kujawski. "We will be back next year and do this again."

Evelyn Schurman's son, Michael Archer was 35 years old when he died in August 2000 after fighting a year-long battle with hip cancer.

Calling him "a valiant warrior", Schurman spoke of her son while she manned a booth at the relay. Her smile did not leave her face while she told stories of him and his strength to the very end.

"Even though he knew that he was dying, he married his love and on his wedding day all of his friends physically held him up during the ceremony," said Schurman.

"They even shaved their heads bald before the wedding as a tribute to him."

Archer, who was a graduate of Quaker Valley High School, passed away on the couple's one-month wedding anniversary. In 2001, when she went to visit her son's grave on Memorial Day, she found that veterans had placed large 9 by 5 foot flags at each veteran's grave.

"There was no wind that day. It was very still and quiet. While the other flags were hanging down, Michael's flag was flapping and flying as if it were the windiest day ever. It was then that I knew it was a sign that he was okay and telling us that."

Vicki Pfalzgraf was the Luminary Committee chairperson for the event. Pfalzgraf's brother, Tim Horton, is a 14-year survivor of colon cancer. She showed her own tenacity when she fell on the track on Saturday and was taken to Sewickley Hospital's emergency room for treatment.

With one arm in a soft cast and a bruised cheek, she returned to the event, rather than go home. Bruised and sore, Pfalzgraf announced the beginning of the luminary walk. As the names of those that graced the luminary bags were read aloud by Joshua Walker, the walkers lit individual candles to hold as they walked a lap in the luminary walk.

Pfalzgraf explained that the luminaries symbolize light and hope for a cure and hope for cancer survivors.

Linda Dawson was a team captain at the event and walked in honor of her sister, Jane McDonough Uechi, who is battling cancer.

Sixth grader Gianna Withrow walked with a team of sixth graders from her school.

"I walked because I like helping and I like to make a difference," she said. And the list goes on and on.

As participants dismantled their tents Sunday morning, the sun shone brightly on the mud-soaked grass where they were erected.

No matter that the weather was unpredictable for the 24 hours of the Relay for Life, the spirit of all of those in attendance and the camaraderie throughout the event proved unwavering.

QVHS named to Newsweek's 'best' list

Newsweek Magazine rated Quaker Valley High School as one of America's best high schools.

Out of a list of 1,036 public high schools in the nation, Quaker Valley was ranked number 523, placing it in the top two percent of the approximately 28,000 private and public high schools throughout the United States.

Advanced Placement exams played a key role in Newsweek's ranking of the schools.

Quaker Valley expanded its Advanced Placement program and the school has seen a marked increase in the number of students taking AP courses and exams.

This year, 143 students took 266 AP exams.

"It is important to note that Newsweek rated the high schools on the basis of the number of students who took AP courses and exams versus the number of graduating seniors and not on exam scores," said, Dr. Jerry Longo, Quaker Valley superintendent. "We welcome all students into our Advanced Placement classes, not just those with high grade point averages. We don't gate-keep. Our teachers encourage the students to try these rigorous college level courses."

"We believe a student is better prepared for college by taking AP or College in High School courses, even if he or she doesn't score high on the exams."

"Our students, in fact, have exceeded our initial expectations. Not only are they eager to take an AP course and exam, 80 percent of those who have taken the exams have qualified for college credit."

Longo said the Newsweek selection is testimony to the district's focus on quality.

Quaker Valley was one of the first 15 school districts to implement the International Baccalaureate Middle Years Programme (IBMYP) for grades 6 through 10 in 1997.

The curriculum includes technology, community service and learning a second language.

Newsweek also took into consideration teacher quality and the number of students who participate in extracurricular activities.

"We would rate highly in these categories, too," said Longo.

"The fact that our students have performed well is, of course, a direct result of having an excellent and dedicated teaching staff."

"And 80 percent of our students are involved in at least one co-curricular or extra-curricular activity."

Nine other Pennsylvania high schools were also ranked in the top 1,036: Conestoga (195), Lower Moreland (263), Harrison (427), Wyomissing (527), Upper St. Clair (637), Unionville (674), Allen (924), Central Bucks East (1013) and Allerdice (1036).

BUSINESS

SEWICKLEY EYE Center's upper Broad Street location has served patients for almost four decades.

Sewickley Eye Center renovates new site

Change is the only constant in health care, and there is a positive change at the Sewickley Eye Center.

Renovation has begun on The Village Commons building in downtown Sewickley, in anticipation of the eye center's move in July 2005.

After 50 years in existence and 38 years in its present location as the eye group's flagship office, Sewickley Eye Center will move a block down Broad Street to a state-of-the-art laser and refractive surgery ophthalmic outpatient regional center of excellence.

Talbot's and National City will be joined on the second floor by the eye center.

"The new center is state of the art with advanced treatment lasers and scanning laser ophthalmoscopic abilities, and rivals university centers in technology. But attention to detail and the human touch is what sets The Sewickley Eye Group apart," said Richard Bowers, M.D.

The center will be staffed by highly trained associates as well as by the ophthalmologists Drs. Ivan Baumwell, Andrew Krouner and Bowers, and by the optometrists Drs. Anthony Latagliata, Lonie Staines, Laura Kimble and Melissa Absey.

"Sewickley' means quality and excellence in Western Pennsylvania and we feel all these professionals embody those values," said Baumwell.

Major renovations to the building also will occur but attention to the aesthetics will continue to make it a signature facility in the village.

Richard Lefkowitz, known world wide in medical architecture and specializes in the needs of ophthalmology, described the project as: "high tech mixed with the high-end feel that has become the signature of the village of Sewickley."

Free patient parking will be accommodated in the lot on site and there is a municipal lot located next door. Elevator service will accommodate those who are inclined to ride and those who are differently abled.

Doctors will continue their care of patients at the eye center's present location at 527 Broad St. until the move.

"We are bullish on Sewickley, which is a unique and thriving example of the quintessential small American village, a bustling downtown surrounded by lovely homes located 15 minutes from one of America's best midsize cities," said Bowers.

"The school district is consistently ranked in the top tier in Pennsylvania, and Sewickley is home to one of America's best private schools. We couldn't be happier to reinvest in this town and in the people who live here."

Lessons, letters end successful school year

By Dona S. Dreeland

Editor

What's with kids today?

What adult hasn't uttered these words in frustration or bewilderment?

What's with some kids is — students at Quaker Valley Middle School are putting more of their education to good use.

Last week, after the deadline for the Herald had passed, the mail carrier delivered 16 letters to the editor to our Greentree Road office.

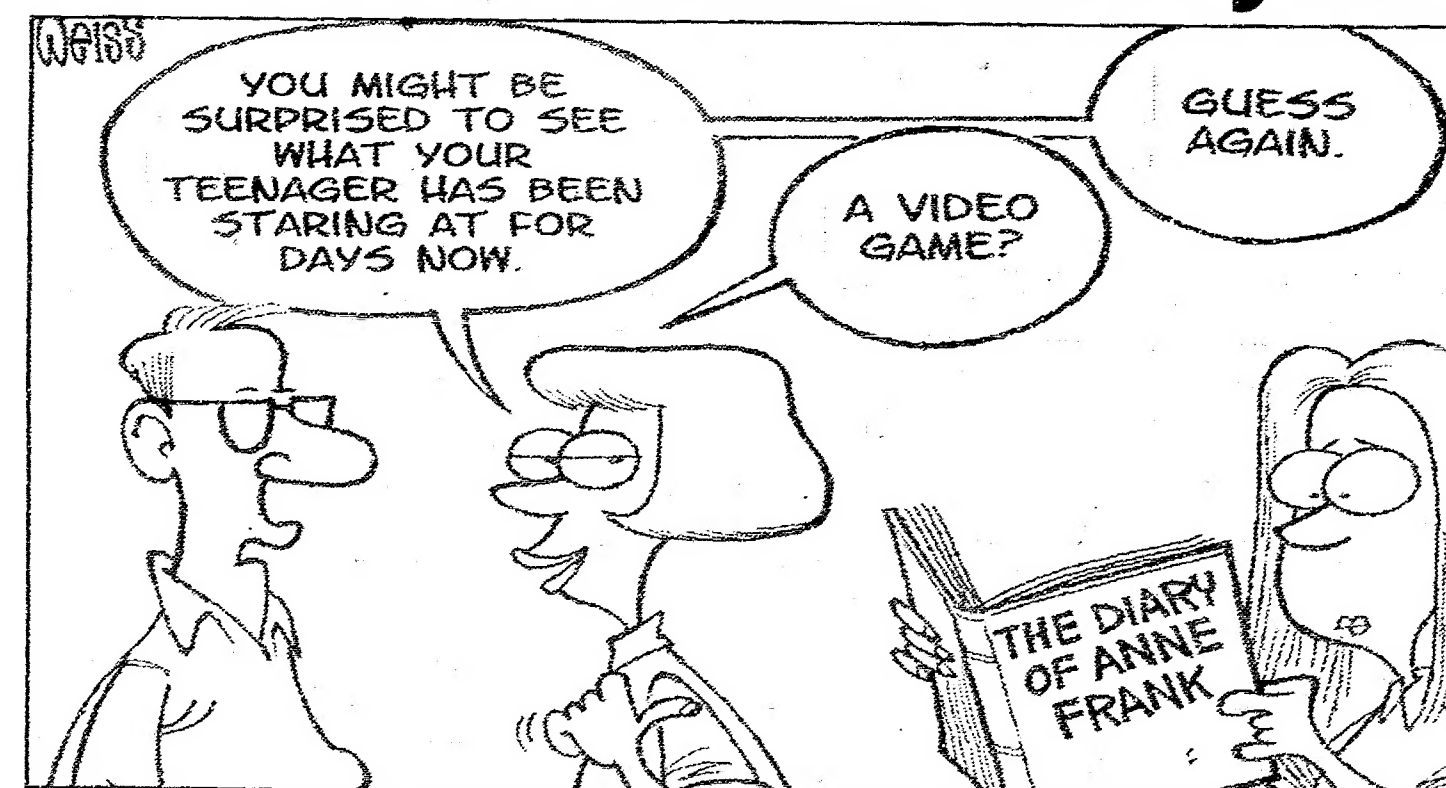

The focus of the correspondence was the same: It was important to participate in the Days of Remembrance, May 1-8, for the victims of the Holocaust.

As they explained, the class had spent a few weeks studying the causes and effects of the rise and fall of Adolph Hitler. In their own words, these eighth-graders explained the tragedy in light of what is happening on the world scene. They wrote about Rwanda, Sudan and Iraq.

Yet within the past horror, they saw very simply, recognizing that 6 million deaths were the catastrophic extension of prejudice and bullying.

They could relate to that easily. Their anti-bullying program had taught them that power derived from extreme good looks, high academic achievement, athletic prowess or elevated economic status could make a person a tyrant.

It was good to read their thoughts, especially since they took a serious turn away from popular culture. It proved that there's room in the teen-age mind for more than chatter about hairdos, fashion, celebrity and entertainment.

The lessons they shared through the reading of the "Diary of Anne Frank" are far more valuable than the current crazes to them and us.

Inside that text, as the students learned, a young girl reacted to the harsh world of her day. Somehow she kept a place for her dreams inside the attic room where her family lived in whispers.

Outside, on the cobbled streets of Amsterdam, the townsfolk lived their lives watchful and afraid, or courageous and caring.

Many Jews were saved. Millions were lost to arrogance and the power of lies.

Our children now know about man's incredible inhumanity, and if their remembrance is long-lived, they will be alert to the everyday signs of bias and hatred whenever they see them.

Their memories and their actions against evil will make for a better world.

Thanks for letting us hear from you, young writers — Elizabeth Harbison, Katie Baker, Lauren Jones, Joseph Franzen, Bailee Fuller, Billy Hinzman, Shayne Harris, Marguerite Elson, Emily Pusateri, Margaret Roberts, Joshua Mark Otto, Jessica Gross, Kelsey Kraus, Elizabeth O'Reilly, Kaley Stunda and Colin Lawrence South.

(The letters will be printed in a later issue.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Writer suggests way to protect borders

Dear Editor,

This administration is doing nothing to protect our southern and northern borders from terrorists, aliens and drug runners. It is time for our voters and people to take action for their own safety.

The governor of each state should enlist 150 unemployed citizens, male and female, age 21-50, to be trained by the Department of State Police how to handle arms and self-protection.

The trainees would have all the equipment to perform their duties. They are to be paid a salary, life and health insurance while on duty and serve as long as they want to or until the federal government takes charge.

The money to finance the program will come from corporate donations, taxes on legal gambling, state lotteries, tobacco and alcohol sales.

Hopefully, there will be contributions from citizens.

As of now, we are policing the world with our military in nations that can afford to take care of their borders.

We are leaving our borders exposed to terrorists, drug dealers and aliens. This is costing our citizens a vast sum of money to take care of their health and other problems.

Each natural born and naturalized citizen should be supplied with an identification card like the Social Security Identification card shown the birth date and place of birth.

This way the aliens could be tracked when they apply for employment or have trouble with the law.

The governors will appoint a panel from various states and have control of the operations until and when the federal government takes control.

Michael Torbic

Women should be treated differently.

Not all women are created equal and not all medical treatments for women should be the same. That's why there are alternatives to hysterectomies and different treatments for incontinence. ## Borough police participate in holiday patrols

Over the Memorial Day holiday period, Sgt. Manko of the Sewickley Police Department would like to remind our local community that police will be conducting saturation patrols.

This statewide traffic detail is being held in conjunction with the Buckle Up Pennsylvania Program.

The enforcement period will be conducted from Monday, May 16, to Sunday, June 5.

This will include joint sobriety and safety checkpoints for potential drunken drivers as well as seat belt violators.

This detail is focused on segments of the population that continue to lag behind the general public in seat belt use.

These groups include young drivers, pick-up truck and service vehicle operator and those who drive at night.

"Buckle Up" every time to be here to enjoy the holidays with friends and loved ones.

Have a safe holiday season.

STORY TIME

Reading pleasure is just a phone call away

By Rachel Weaver

Staff writer

The staff at Sewickley Public Library believes any reading is good reading, even if it comes from a voice over the phone.

Whenever a child wants a fast and fun fable, the Sewickley Public Library's Dial-A-Story is ready with an array of tales for young callers.

Punching in the numbers 412-741-2667 gets the dialer an instant three- to five-minute story read by an SPL librarian.

"This is a great one-on-one opportunity," says Rita Crawford, head of Sewickley Public Library's children department.

"So often kids are involved in group story times. This way the child can feel like the librarian is directly telling the story to them."

Dial-A-Story began in 1979 with original funding by the Sewickley Century Club.

The service is available seven days a week, 24 hours a day, allowing families freedom to make their own listening traditions depending on their own individual schedules.

"People probably do use it in various ways. It's appropriate for the evening in those few minutes before dinner time and to be used at bedtime," says Crawford.

Parents can listen along with their children simply by hitting the speaker-phone option.

Others prefer their children to listen on their own, then repeat the tale they heard to them.

"Usually if a child hears something exciting, he's going to share it," says

Crawford.

While the service once required high-tech equipment, the story is now read onto an answering machine.

If someone calls while someone else is listening, they will get another line and still hear a story.

Librarian Kathy Koltas changes the automated reading about once a week.

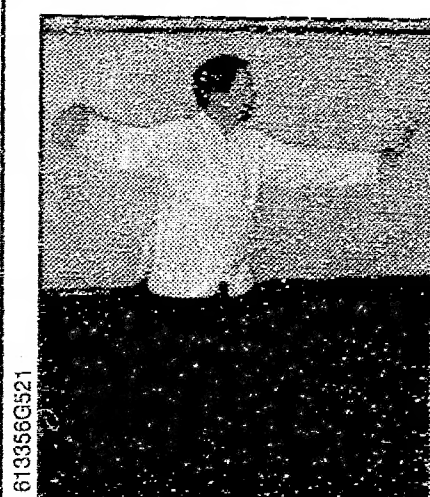

Selected stories are geared toward children age 3 to 6 and are chosen based on quality of literature and length of time it takes to be read aloud.

The first Dial-A-Story was "Three Billy Goats Gruff" by Paul Galdone.

Since then, countless titles have traveled the telephone lines to reach little ears listening on the other end.

CELEBRATION

Week honors emergency personnel

This week is designated National Emergency Medical Services Week, a time to honor the approximately 850,000 EMS providers nationwide, who deliver lifesaving care.

National EMS Week recognizes the life-saving care EMS providers offer on a 24-hours-a-day, 7-days-a-week basis.

This year, we celebrate EMS with the 3 R's that describe EMS: Ready, Responsive and Reliable.

"EMS is ready because we are available anywhere and at any time," said Linda Kelley, Community Relations Coordinator at Quaker Valley Ambulance Authority.

"We are responsive in all weather conditions for all hazards and all kinds of medical emergencies. And EMS is reliable, serving the public with well-trained and courteous paid and volunteer professionals."

EMS is a vital part of every community. This year, EMS personnel hope to continue to educate the communities they serve in the 3 R's of EMS.

"An educated community is more likely to support EMS and work cooperatively to improve emergency medical care for everyone," said Kelley.

"Each year, millions of people need emergency medical care while at work, in their homes or in places outside of a hospital. That's when Emergency Medical Services, or EMS, is there for you any time, any day, anywhere that you need us."

EMS provides many services such as CPR training, injury prevention and safety awareness education and blood pressure screening at the Valley Ambulance Authority base located on University Boulevard in Moon Township all throughout the year.

For additional information regarding EMS Week activities or other ongoing services provided by QVAA, call Kelley at 412-262-2621, Ext. 115.

Successful fund-raiser

More than 270 people attended Sewickley Academy's auction late last month at the Duquesne Club in Pittsburgh.

The event raised approximately $140,000 for the school.

Patti Stine coordinated the auction. Finke co-chaired the event with Kathy Johnston, Susie Keller and Mary Mackey.

Among the auction items was an opportunity to be "Head of School For A Day," as well as a Steelers jersey autographed by all the 2004 players, diamond earrings from Orr's and an American Girl trip to New York.

HELP WANTED

Campaign continues

"Memorials and monuments, like all other art forms, illustrate and hold immortal our past and present while continuing to record the constant transformations going on within and around us."

So read an article on the Citizens for Soldiers organization in last year's Herald.

"Perhaps this is why we need to revisit those places that remind us of where we have been; and to reconsider our investment in preserving the monuments and memorials that give us a hold on who we are as a people, as a nation, and as a world."

Tax-deductible donations may be sent to: Citizens for Soldiers, Fame Fund, P. O. Box 293, Sewickley, PA 15143.

No donation is too small or too large.

Citizens for Soldiers is a Pennsylvania not-for-profit organization. It has a 501(c)(3) designation from the IRS.

The committee meets the third Wednesday of each month and welcomes your interest and support.

MEMORIAL CAR CRUISE

Friends, family remember Baltzer's zest for life

By Laura Halleman

Staff writer

Family, friends and a zest for life; these are what those who knew Carl Baltzer Jr. said were his priorities.

There was no shortage of loving recollections of Baltzer on Sunday at the Carl Baltzer Memorial Car Cruise and Fund-raiser. Baltzer, owner of Pizza Roma in Sewickley, passed away on Feb. 6, 2005, at age 46 after a nearly five-year battle with cancer.

As he did so often in life, Baltzer continued his legacy of giving in death by insisting that the car cruises he spearheaded each year continue, with all proceeds from the event going to the Ricky Manko Juvenile Diabetes Fund.

Baltzer was key in the inception of the fund for Manko, who died at the age of six after a brave battle with juvenile diabetes.

"When Ricky passed away, Carl took the helm," said Richard Manko, father of the younger Manko and a Sewickley police officer.

Glancing over the classic cars spilling into the parking lot at the car cruise and the mass of people who turned out for the event, Manko flashed a bittersweet smile.

"I know Carl is here in spirit. He is looking down on this and smiling," he said.

Baltzer, who grew up on the North Side of Pittsburgh, worked at Pizza Roma in the North Hills. When the opportunity arose to purchase the Sewickley Pizza Roma, Baltzer jumped at the chance and enjoyed a successful business there for 21 years.

His wife, Amy, and daughter, Tina DeGoller, continue to keep Baltzer's dream of a successful restaurant alive at Roma's.

From the day Baltzer was diagnosed with cancer, he was nothing but positive, said DeGoller.

"Oh my gosh, he was so positive about everything, even throughout his chemotherapy and radiation treatments," said DeGoller.

In fact, the day that DeGoller gave birth to her daughter, Kaitlyn, Baltzer went straight from his chemo treatment to see his daughter and hold his granddaughter at the hospital.

"He was so strong and a wonderful dad. I couldn't ask for a better dad," she said.

His wife attested to his strength,

THE SUN came out for Sunday's Carl Baltzer Memorial Car Cruise, which raised $6,437.

A FAMILY portrait of Carl, Amy and Tina.

Baltzer was also a dedicated father, grandfather and father figure to those around him. If an employee needed advice, he was there to give it. If a friend needed a loan, Baltzer was the one to rely on for it.

"Everybody loved him. He was so outgoing and good to all of the people he came in contact with," said DeGoller.

Although Baltzer was in remission for almost two years, the cancer resurfaced and slowly took its toll on him. On the day he died, his wife recalled what a beautiful day it was outside.

"The sun was shining and it was Superbowl Sunday, Carl's favorite day of the year," she said.

Baltzer waited for the kick off and although he couldn't speak, was coherent to the end.

Just as hundreds of Baltzer's family and friends convened to pay their respects and celebrate his life in February, they did so again at Sunday's memorial car cruise. As Baltzer's beloved corvette sat parked on Beaver Street in Sewickley, the assortment of classic cars took a back seat to the memories that were shared of Baltzer by those in attendance.

With oldies music wafting through the air, so too, was the legacy of a man who touched so many lives and who lived life to its fullest every day.

even in the face of adversity.

"Regardless of how sick he was he would make me get him out of bed every day," said Amy Baltzer.

"Even though he was sick, he still came to the restaurant and went on fishing trips or camping and spent time among his friends and family. That's what Carl loved to do and he was going to do it to the very end."

A popular memory of Baltzer was his sense of humor. His penchant for practical jokes kept employees and customers at Roma's on their toes.

Amy Baltzer said it was not uncommon for a bartender to open up the cash register to find the scaly remains of a fish that Baltzer had caught on many a fishing trip laying inside.

"I know that sounds gross, but it was funny as hell and it made people laugh. That's what Carl did. He made people laugh. I think he enjoyed the people more than the business," said Baltzer, smiling.

But as much as he was a jokester,

SENIOR WEEK

Still swingin'!

DRIVING OFF the tee (above) was Bob Steup of Sewickley. The tournament began after a light breakfast at Scally's. (Below) Jerry Schweiger of Moon Township putts into the cup.

Sewickley Valley YMCA's Senior Week activities drew hundreds of participants.

There was an Antiques Roadshow, a musical revue by The Spotlight Players, "Ask the Pharmacist" hours and a duplicate bridge tournament.

The annual golf tournament at Scally's on Wednesday was the scene of a great surprise when the outing was re-named to honor Bob Kramer (at right with Ann Berger, director of Faith in Action), who founded the tournament four years ago.

It was Kramer's idea to donate all money leftover from the tournament to the Y's Faith in Action group, an organization dedicated to matching seniors with helpers to assist with the chores of daily living.

Hundreds of friendships have been formed through the group's caring efforts.

ON THE CALENDAR

Group hosts speaker on WWII-era music

At a joint meeting with the Ben Avon Area Historical Association, members of the Sewickley Valley Historical Society will take a musical step back in time on Wednesday, May 25, when they take part in the annual meeting of the society.

A program of "The Music of World War II" will be the feature of the evening.

The presenter is Dr. Phillip Atteberry, head of the English Department and director of the School of Humanities, University of Pittsburgh, Titusville.

Atteberry's musical education began in earnest when his father took him to see the Duke Ellington orchestra. That was in 1966 and, inspired by the experience, Atteberry enthusiastically pursued his father's large record collection.

At the same time he applied himself, less enthusiastically, to the piano and saxophone.

When he realized he would not become a professional jazz musician, Atteberry pursued the less glamorous, but more stable, profession of teaching.

He earned his M.A. and Ph.D. in English from Washington University in St. Louis.

In his position at the University of Pittsburgh, Atteberry teaches a wide range of composition and literature as well as courses in jazz and the history of American popular music.

Atteberry has taught a wide range of seminars on American popular music at the Chautauqua Institute and elsewhere.

"The Music of World War II" is a PowerPoint presentation that features music, rare photographs and vintage sheet music from Atteberry's collection.

The meeting will be held at the Old Sewickley Post Office, 200 Broad St., Sewickley, at 7:30 p.m.

For information regarding the Sewickley Valley Historical Society, its programs, and resources, call 412-741-5315.

Culture & cooking

Golf outing planned for HEARTH

HEARTH will hold its 10th annual Tee and Green Golf Outing, Dinner and Silent Auction on Monday, June 20, at Sewickley Heights Golf Club.

This year's Tee and Green kicks off a year-long celebration of the 10th anniversary of Benedictine Place, HEARTH's transitional housing program for homeless women with children.

Benedictine Place, the only program of its kind in Allegheny County, provides safe, affordable housing for homeless women with children while empowering the women to earn a degree and gain skills that will allow them to support their families on their own when they leave the program.

Registration for golfers is $250 and includes a practice tee, lunch, 18 holes with a cart, dinner, a silent auction and chances to win many prizes.

Tickets for the dinner and silent auction only are $65.

To register for golf or to attend the dinner, call 412-939-2302.

At dinner, HEARTH will present Dreammaker awards to The Richard J. Madden Foundation and Zonta Three Rivers Pittsburgh North. Dreammakers are donors who have given at least $10,000 to date in support of the programs at HEARTH.

Sponsors include Fort Pitt Capital Group; Dr. and Mrs. Matthew DiAndreth; Affiliated Computer Services; Sherrard, German, and Kelly, P.C.; Ciber; and Fifth Third Bank.

We've Moved!!!

Cuttings Flower & Garden Market has moved! "We bought the property several years ago and always wanted to move our store into it," says owner Jim Price. "This was the perfect time to do it." The historic Italianate home, located at 524 Locust Place, was built around 1876. A history of the house shows it was built by the Arbuckle family who owned an estate located above Centennial Avenue. A census taken soon after the house was built indicates it was occupied by Phillip Lautenschlager, whose occupation was listed as gardener. It is understood that Mr. Lautenschlager worked for the Arbuckle family. "We feel the house has come full circle with our bringing plants and flowers back to it," commented Price.

With a gracious staircase in the front entry and four rooms - a living room, dining room and two upstairs bedrooms, Cuttings now has the ability to show their gifts and accessories in a home-like setting. Each of the main rooms has the original marble fireplace and 10' ceilings with the original plaster cove moldings.

At the top of the staircase is a beautiful bay window providing a bright and comfortable sitting area for bridal consultations. "Planning a wedding can be stressful," says Ellen Hitchins, manager of the store. "We feel we have created a great place to sit, relax, look at our library of photos and plan the perfect floral accompaniment for any style of wedding."

"We will still provide the same unique floral arrangements we always have," commented

Suzi Fair, designer. "But now, we are able to offer our customers help in seeing how they might use planters, vases or other items from our expanded inventory in their own home. I have been helping people with the interior of their homes for many years and enjoy seeing them discover ways in which they can combine what they have with new and exciting home accessories... the kind we now have at Cuttings."

Cuttings is located at 524 Locust Place and is open Monday through Friday, 8:30 am until 6 pm and on Saturdays from 9 am until 5 pm.

Medication safety tips for kids camps

(NAPSI)-The National Camp Association says that more than six million children will head to summer camp this year.

In addition to raingear and swimsuits more parents than ever before may be packing prescription medications for their kids. According to pharmacy benefit manager Medco Health Solutions, more than half of children are taking prescription drugs; the most common are medications for asthma, allergies, behavioral disorders and infections.

"Any credible camp will have its own prescription drug policy," said Becky Nagle, a pharmacist and senior director of clinical practice and education at Medco.

"It's important that parents do their homework to understand who is responsible for their child's medication needs, and who the members of the camp's health care team are."

Nagle offers the following general tips to parents whose children may be required to take medications while attending camp:

- Know Before You Go: Learn about the camp medical staff, its on-site medical facilities, and where the closest hospital is.

- Make the camp administration aware of any conditions your child has and any medications your child is on.

- Know Who's in Charge: Make sure you know who is in charge of your child's medications, and who is legally allowed to or prohibited from administering them, whether it is nurse, doctor, counselor or camp coordinator.

- Medic Alert Bracelets: If warranted, purchase a medic alert bracelet or identification for your child.

- Push the Paper: Submit all necessary paperwork regarding your child's health care, including physical forms, consent forms, standing administration orders and a list of all of your child's medications, as well as contact numbers for you, your child's pediatrician and your pharmacist.

- Retain Original Containers: All medications that are sent to camp for your child should be in the original containers with original labels.

- Make a Medication List: Make a list of all prescription and over-the-counter medications your child takes.

Keep a copy for yourself, give one to your child, and make sure the medical staff and counselors at the camp have copies as well.

Take the time to explain to your child what medications he's taking and why he's taking them. Make sure the child knows whom to see immediately if she begins to experience any reactions.

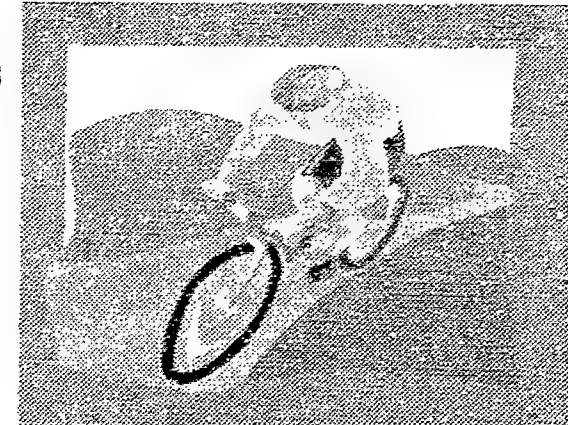

And always make sure your child knows that it is never okay to share medications with another camper.

Thought for the Week

Here is a thought to think upon. How can we compare living to driving a car?

When we are behind the wheel of a car, we must keep our eyes on the road ahead and now and then we glance in our rearview mirror to see what is coming from behind... We must be both forward-looking and backward-looking...

Life, too, is both forward-looking and backward-looking. Life is a winding road through the years that are allotted to us. It passes through pleasant valleys and over steep hills. And, yes it threads its way through wastelands, too. No one can see far enough ahead along the road to know which he will be required to travel on any given day. But each has the strength within himself for the hills and the courage for the wastelands. Only those who childishly insist that all the roads must be through pleasant valley fail. And they fail because they never learn to use the inner strength that God gave them for the hills, not to call upon the inner courage he gave them for the wastelands...

Peanut Heaven

By Jon Paul Creese

Academy senior boasts long list of achievements

I heard a few good things about Tom Reinmiller, from several different sources. And after hearing of his accomplishments, All-WPIAL soccer player, gold medalist in the 200-meter dash and, most recently, scoring the game-tying goal for the Hotspurs PSV under 18 Boys' Soccer Team during the Region 1 Championship, I knew this gifted young man's exploits would make great fodder for a column.

The multi-talented Sewickley Academy senior will soon be leaving for Elizabethtown College, almost without much fanfare — at least, not much from the Sewickley Herald.

At the high school level, often the ones who get recognition are the ones who put points on the board (Reinmiller played defense for the SA soccer team). Also, the SA track and field team for which Reinmiller runs, and runs well, is too small to be recognized officially, so the stats are usually not reported.

This is how great Sewickley athletes sometimes slip through the cracks of literary limelight.

Reinmiller chose Elizabeth for what it has to offer academically. He's attending on an academic scholarship. He could have easily been recruited to a Division II or better school with his soccer talent.

All too often academics take a back seat to sports. I think this says a lot about his maturity of character.

Reinmiller came to my attention through those who have watched him more intently than I, and I am glad to be able to reserve a space this week to honor one of Sewickley's most valuable scholar/athletes.

Last week, he played midfield for the Hotspurs at Kirkwood Soccer Complex. They took on the PSC Coppa Bucks of Philadelphia, which was the 2004 Eastern Pennsylvania State Champion and has 14 players moving into NCAA Division 1 soccer programs next year.

"I think I played the best I have in a while," he said of his performance. "The team has really been working hard. Everything just came together."

With the Hotspurs down 0-1, Reinmiller netted the game-tying goal midway through the second half, taking the game into overtime. The Hotspurs ended up winning by a shoot out in the second overtime.

"We got the ball to our forward, he sent it across the middle," Reinmiller remembered of his timely goal. "I came in from the outside and shot it toward the far post."

The Hotspurs went on to defeat the Baltimore Bays, the 2004 Maryland State Champions, in the Region 1 Premier League Championship final. That game also went into double overtime. Reinmiller played both games without substitution, 120 minutes all told.

He prefers midfield, but was located behind the line with the Panthers this season when the team allowed only one goal on their home turf, Nichols Field.

Reinmiller was a solid presence throughout the season, contributing to a 20-4 record.

He played explosively with the intensity and desire of one who loves the game and his school.

Tom Reinmiller

He also ran for the Academy's track team. During the Mars Invite, he ran a 23.18 in the 200-meter dash, breaking a school record.

"I wasn't really figuring I was going to win," he said. "I thought the 400 was my strongest. I switched to the 200." "What Tom brings to the team is a quiet determination on the track and an easy going nature that helps him to blend in well with his teammates," said David Long, head coach. "He ... competes with humility. He is an attentive listener and is always working to improve upon his ability."

THE HOTSPURS celebrate after the finals.

Reinmiller plans to major in international business next year.

The Academy will lose one stellar athlete.

I'm just glad I did not lose what may be my last chance to detail a few of Reinmiller's accomplishments before that happens.

Vision for the future.

Don't lose sight of what matters most.

Cloudy, blurred images. Vision that slowly narrows. Sight that gradually gets worse. Don't miss seeing the people and places you love. Don't let eye disease blind you to the truth that almost half of all people who will lose their eyesight this year could have prevented it.

Look to the place where new innovations and treatments fight eye disease and conditions that no longer have to cause loss of sight. Look to the place whose visionary techniques have helped hundreds of cataract and glaucoma patients. Look to the Cataract & Eye Surgery

Center, where some of the best eye doctors in the city use some of the best technology in the world to treat and prevent eye disease. Early detection is vital. Call today to make an appointment for a free screening. We'll even provide free transportation.

Conditions we treat include: Glaucoma, Cataracts, Diabetic Retinopathy, Age-related Vision Loss, Macular Degeneration, Corneal Disease, Retinal Detachment and Ocular Plastic Surgery.

Quaker grad keeps breaking records

meter hurdles. She recorded a time of 14.54 in the 100-meter hurdles and broke a school record of 14.80.

"I am very pleased with my performance. I fought through a series of injuries through volleyball, the indoor track season and now outdoor track," Rogers said. "I am very blessed to have been able to place first in three races, in a Division I conference, as a freshman."

She also won the 100-meter dash with a time of 12.20, tying another school record.

Rogers, who attends Manhattan on a volleyball scholarship, says she is not surprised to have so much success as a freshman.

"I expected myself to do better time wise," she explained. "I cannot expect much more seeing as I have had so many injuries."

Rogers' accomplishments helped to lead the women's team to their seventh title in eight years.

"I love our girls," she said of the team and added that they have a lot of pride. "I have made some really good friends on the track team. It's amazing how close thirty girls can get when it comes down to beating your arch rival."

It's hard to imagine a scholar/athlete adjusting so seamlessly to a big college atmosphere, but that is exactly what Rogers is doing at Manhattan.

She seems completely unintimidated by the work load or being the one the team counts on for victories.

She says time management and prayer get her through the tough times.

"[There were] plenty of moments when I thought I was going to lose my sanity," she joked, noting that her busiest day so far included a 20-minute exercise session focusing on cardio and weight lifting in the morning, a full day of classes, a three-hour volleyball practice and a short hurdle technique practice.

"After dinner, I would go to study hall for at least two hours," she said.

The freshman took three golds and broke two school records at the Men and Women's Track and Field Captures 2005 MAAC Outdoor Championships. Photo by Jon Paul Creese Despite all of her success, Rogers has not forgotten her days at QV.

"There is no other group of girls that I would rather share a championship with than these girls," she said. "Well ... except for the three WPIAL Championships we got in high school."

"I think it would have been fun to win this year with my sister, Christa," she said, "but I think it's great that we won MAAC and QV's girls won WPIAL!"

Christa, a QV freshman, plays volleyball and runs track, like her sister, and with a comparable amount of success.

nities."

The 41-year-old petite tailback started out as wide receiver, then moved to free safety and finally landed where she is now.

"Tailback is my favorite," she said. "I'm pretty sure that's where I belong."

Another thing Conn is sure of is she belongs with the Passion and plans to be with them for quite some time, if only as owner.

"I wanted to keep it about the players," she said. "I've seen an awful lot of players and coaches come and go."

"The one constant is this group of girls," she said. "I don't want anyone to come in and destroy everything they've invested."

Conn has been with the Passion from the beginning. She says team work is the key to their success, and she appreciates the community response.

"The team is awesome," she said. "They make a lot of sacrifices ... I couldn't ask for more."

"It's growing so rapidly and Pittsburgh has been fabulous to us," she said. "I am always impressed how many people take a general interest."

For those who are going, the Passion plays Baltimore at Ambridge High School, May 21 at 7 p.m.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

What's the first step toward selling your home? Call a realty professional. This might take several steps if you talk to a number of potential listing agents. Regardless of your selection, they should all ask questions to determine your particular needs.

Time For Some "Q&A"

Betty Moraca
ARR, CRS, CRS, CRS

Of course, you'll supply personal information like name, address, phone, and email. It's helpful to have answers to questions like, "Why do you want to sell?" and "When?" Any idea what sale price you're seeking? The agent will provide detailed facts to make the best pricing decision, but that decision is ultimately yours.

Have a sheet in front of you to easily answer questions about your home such as square footage, number of bedrooms and bathroom, and amenities (Wood floors? Fireplace? New appliances?).

Any agent worth their salt will inquire about where you're moving, and whether you know any realty professionals there. The agent you select will be a valuable resource for your move, connecting you with a qualified agent to assist with locating and purchasing your new home.

And don't forget to mention how you heard about your agent! Did you see an ad in the local homes magazine, receive a postcard in the mail, or read an editorial in the newspaper? The more answers you have ready, the more the agent will understand your needs, guaranteeing excellent tailored service and a successful sale!

Betty Moraca is a sales associate for Howard Hanna Real Estate Services, 401 Broad Street, Sewickley. For answers to your questions about real estate, call Betty at 741-2200 Ext. 222. ## Trees offer years of beauty

Follow these simple steps to add a beautiful tree to your yard.

A tree's dormant periods — early spring before bud break and late fall after leaf drop — are the best times for planting.

Prepare for planting by calling local utility companies to locate your underground lines.

Whichever form of tree you plant, the instructions are similar. The following method refers to balled-and-burlapped and container-grown trees.

■ Measure the diameter of the tree's root ball with your shovel handle.

Remove sod that's twice as wide as the root ball. Set the tree aside (pick it up by the root ball, not by the trunk).

■ Then, dig a planting hole. Be certain it's deep enough so that the top of the root ball will align with ground level. Loosen soil in the bottom of the hole and around the sides.

Peel burlap back from the trunk but leave it on the root ball; it will decompose eventually.

Otherwise, remove any containers and plastic, twine, or wire encasements. Center tree in the hole.

■ Refill the hole with soil. Note: fertilizing is not recommended.

Crumble dirt clods, then settle soil and eliminate air pockets around roots by watering the hole as you fill it.

After the hole is completely backfilled and watered, apply mulch.

Water again in a week, then again every week (unless an inch of rain falls) through the first growing season and prior to winter.

— Mane's Legacy — The future, women and science —

(NAPSI)-Women scientists are coming to the profession in a myriad of ways, but the reasons for their love of science are essentially no different than those of their most well-known predecessor: Marie Curie.

A passion for discovery-the eyebrow-raising moments that thrill and amaze, a love of research, the challenge of creating solutions out of difficult and complex puzzles-is the key factor that determined their destinies.

It was also pivotal that early curiosities and interests were encouraged and supported by a steady stream of mentors, usually beginning at home.

For example, Lisa Hines was devastated when her mother died of breast cancer.

But the loss was also the key factor in her decision to pursue a career in the health-related sciences.

"At the time my mother was diagnosed with breast cancer there were so many unanswered questions as to how a seemingly healthy individual can become so ill," she says.

"My goal was to find out why this occurred and how it could be prevented."

Today, Hines is a researcher on the Breast Cancer 1000 Project at Harvard Medical School, working to identify and clone 1000 genes associated with breast cancer development into a universal cloning system. The system will hopefully lead to a better understanding of the cellular pathways involved in the development of breast cancer and develop therapeutic strategies.

Dr. Hines, a recipient of a two-year L'Oréal USA Fellowship, echoes other women scientists who have forged ahead, making strides in a profession that has not traditionally embraced women.

"There still needs to be more women science faculty members, more role models," explains Dr. Joan Steitz, a research scientist and professor at Yale University, and a 2001 L'Oréal-UNESCO For Women In Science (FWIS) laureate. She believes it's imperative that female high school and college students begin to see more women scientists in academia.

Dr. Johanna Levett Sengers, a Scientist Emeritus at the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) in Gaithersburg, Maryland and the recipient of the 2003 L'Oréal-UNESCO For Women In Science Award believes that, if science is to continue to make significant breakthroughs "no country-moreover not 50 percent of humanity can be left behind because they happen to be female."

To start, expectations, preconceptions and outlooks must change. Girls need to feel welcomed in math and science classes, stimulated and encouraged by knowledgeable and enthusiastic teachers. Meanwhile, teachers should respect the sometimes dissimilar approaches boys and girls take to learning these subjects.

Dr. Hines hopes that as more women scientists receive media exposure, highlighting their accomplishments, girls might find the profession more appealing. One thing is apparent: these women, from their 30s to their 70s, are all committed to nurturing, molding and supporting women who enter the sciences. They are all at the forefront of the role model movement.

— Handling office stress can be hard work —

(NAPS)-It's important that dealing with work-related stress doesn't become a full-time job.

That's one conclusion of a recent study that found stress is becoming a prominent fixture in the American workplace, with only half of workers able to deal effectively with it.

The study revealed that workers now take up to two weeks of sick time a year to deal with stress-related illness and that many use over-the-counter analgesics in an effort to remedy their stress-related sickness.

The study, conducted by the Hadassah women's organization, in partnership with Aetna and the United States Tennis Association, polled approximately 1,000 people at companies across the Northeast. It was created by stress expert and author Dr. Deborah Bright, who served as co-investigator with Dr. Mark Popachin, a prominent gastroenterologist at New York-Presbyterian Hospital's Weill Cornell Medical Center.

One in three respondents said

Stress Busters In The Workplace... results from a Hadassah survey

- Seventy-four percent of people said they build "to do" lists.
- Sixty-nine percent break larger tasks into smaller parts.
- Sixty-two percent talk to a co-worker.
- Sixty-four percent clean and organize their work areas.
- Fifty-eight percent establish clear goals.

Stress Busting After Work

- Seventy-four percent talk to family members, one's mate and friends.
- Sixty-four percent said reading is the most effective way to deal with stress.

they are "highly stressed" at work, with nearly four in 10 reporting that they have more stress at work today than two years ago. Only 50 percent rated themselves as "very effective" in handling this stress.

As a result, 32 percent admitted missing anywhere from one to 14 days of work in 2004 due to stress-related illness and just about one-quarter (24 percent) disclosed taking anywhere from one to five aspirin or acetaminophen tablets daily because of stress-related complaints.

According to the study, there are numerous factors contributing to on-the-job stress. Fifty-five percent of respondents cited their foremost stressor as being given more tasks and responsibilities than time to do them.

Forty-three percent cited being on the receiving end of criticism as the second greatest source of stress, while having to give criticism rated as the eighth highest stress-producing situation (36 percent).

"Americans are experiencing higher levels of stress than ever before," said June Walker, Hadassah's National President and a health care professional. "The challenge of balancing work, family, and finances in an increasingly more competitive, demanding world is definitely taking its toll."

"Stress has become a health concern for people both in the workplace and home setting," said Dr.

Popachin. "It cannot be eliminated from our lives. Our study assesses which coping strategies are being utilized by those who successfully manage their stress. From these findings, we hope to identify practical methods for all of us to minimize the negative effects of stress in our lives."

Building "to do" lists seemed to be the most effective way respondents managed workplace stress, while smoking was the least effective. Unfortunately, most people said their work-related stress doesn't leave them when they leave work. Fifty-five percent said they frequently think about work while at home, and 20 percent said they have difficulty sleeping at night due to stress-related problems from work.

Also, people may want to be careful about just how quickly they climb the corporate ladder. If you are a manager between the ages of 25 and 44, chances are you are among those who are least effective at handling everyday work-related stress.

— Wiper blades - An endangered species —

(NAPS) - During the 20th Century, mankind has witnessed the effects of technological advancements.

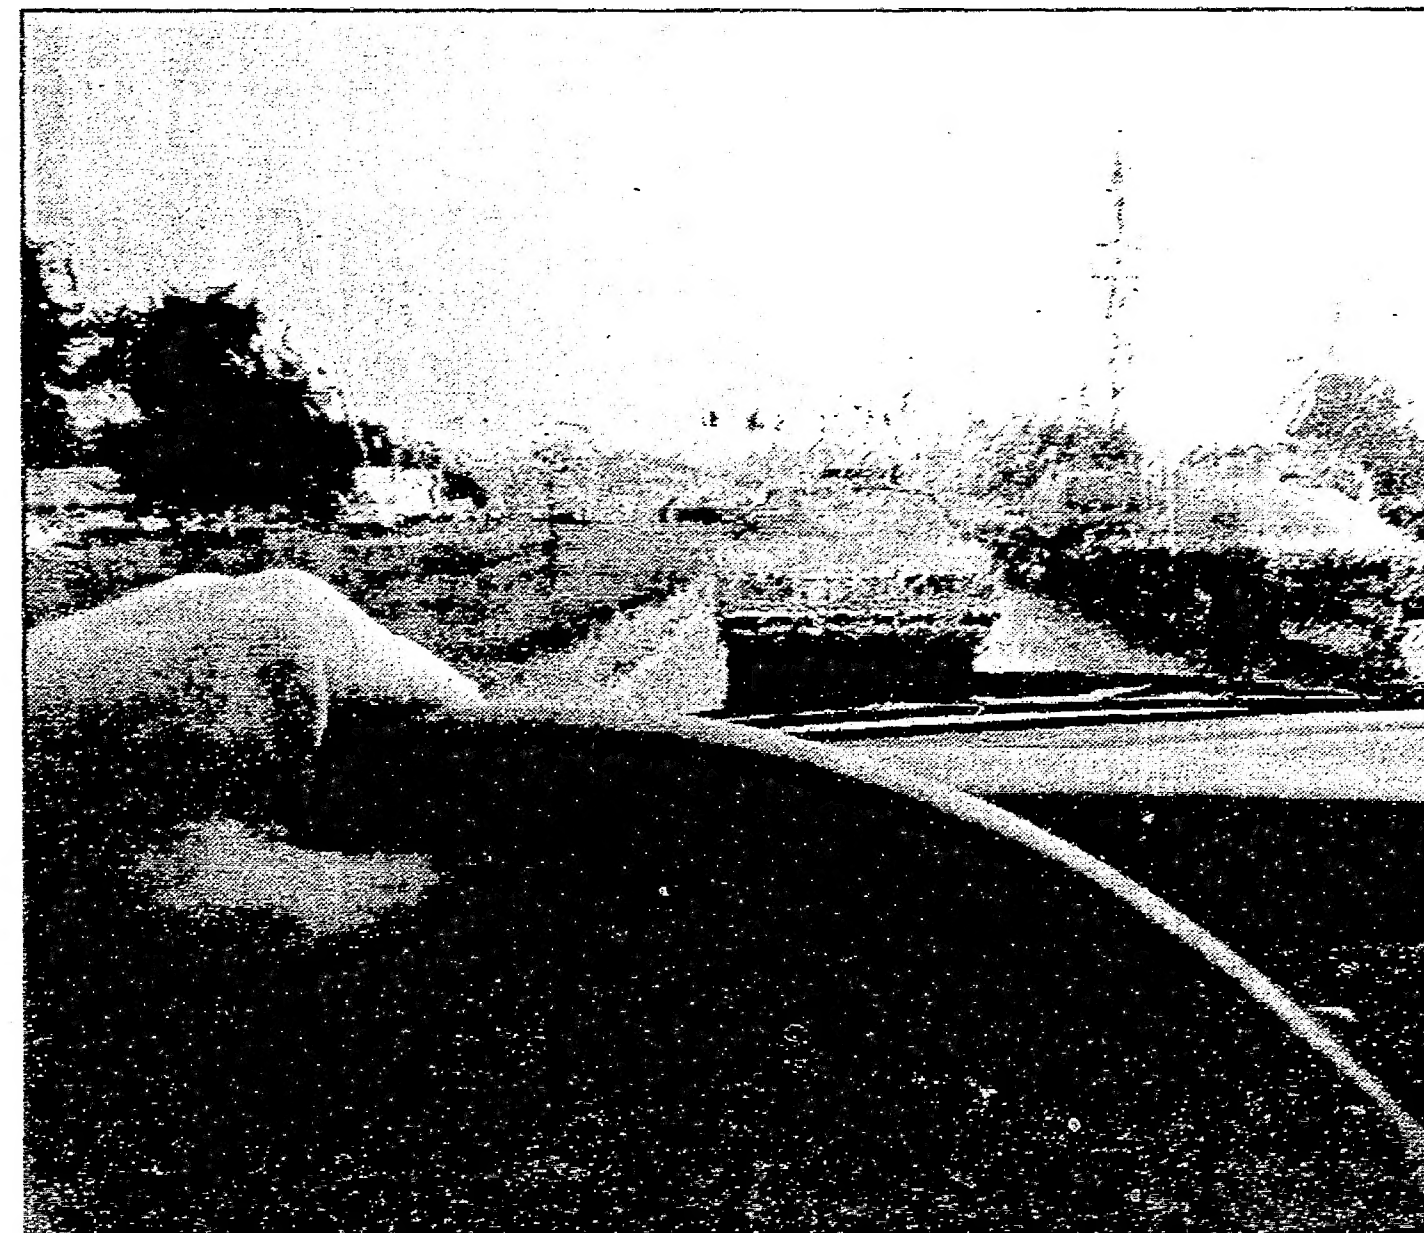

However, technology is advancing so quickly, new designs make previous advancements obsolete before many people realize it. Lasers are replacing scalpels and computer chips are replacing lasers.

VCR's were replacing movie theaters and now DVD players are replacing VCR's.

Telephones replaced radios and now telephones are being replaced by Cell Phones. The automotive industry is becoming so high tech that before too long it might take a computer technician just to fill the gas tank!

Even traditional wiper blades are becoming extinct. Since the material properties of silicone were discovered, it has replaced traditional carbon-based rubber in many automotive applications.

And with good reason. Carbon is the backbone of traditional rubber, which deteriorates rapidly and can not withstand severe temperature variations.

Silicone, on the other hand, is inorganic with a silica backbone, which gives it tremendous resistance to severe temperature variations as well as resistance to ozone, UV rays and weathering.

The traditional rubber wiper blade loses its functional properties below 32 degrees F. where it becomes stiff and brittle and above 110 degrees F. it dries and deteriorates rapidly.

Silicone wipers operate perfectly in temperatures as low as minus 100 degrees F. and as high as plus 350 degrees F.

With these kinds of advancements, the necessity to replace worn wipers in the pouring rain or freezing weather will become another story our grandchildren will listen to in amazement.

They will wonder how we ever got along without things like Silicone Wipers, the Internet, cell phones, Global Positioning Devices, etc. etc. For more information on Silicone Wiper blades visit your local Wal-Mart, Kmart or call 800-517-7600.
